¹ INTF lists this MS as c. 200 CE. University of Michigan considers it late second century.

² Text descriptions on tape often indicate recto and verso. These descriptions describe the front and back of the leaf not the direction of the fibers, which is usually indicated by these terms.

³ The bottom two lines are missing some text (2–3 letters) that is in Kenyon's plate. I suspect that the bifolio's plate was retaped at one point, but perhaps not well (hence, the loose tape just below the text on this leaf as well as loose tape on the upper left corner), and the hanging chad fell off. The recto side is clearly missing the last line which had c. 6 partial letters on it in Kenyon's plate.

⁴ Backside is mislabeled as Heb 11.26; should say Heb 11.26–34.

⁵ Kenyon says Heb 11.35–12.1; the note on the tape says Heb 11.35–12.2; Kenyon is correct.

⁶ Plate description on tape says Heb 13.3–12, although it ends at 11.

⁷ Plate descriptions are incorrect. The verse references on the tape are reversed.

⁸ Label for plate is on the wrong side.

⁹ Plate says text is 2 Cor 2.13–3.4, but Kenyon says it is 2 Cor 2.13–3.3. Kenyon is correct; the last partial line could not possibly have any of v. 4 in it.

¹⁰ The plate incorrectly labels this as beginning at 2 Cor 5.15; it begins in the middle of v. 14.

¹¹ The actual leaf is much lighter than the Kenyon plate.

¹² Tape on plate says Col 1.5–12, but the text goes through part of verse 13.

¹³ Tape on plates identifies the text on the reverse; the label on the verso identifies the recto text as “Col 4.16–1” and should read “Col 4.16–1 Thess 1.1.”
